OFFICERS DENY KELLY'S CHARGE

Regarding Disposition Of Moonshine And Mayor And Committee Will Investigate

City Attorney H. C. Rice reported to the city council at the regular monthly meeting Thursday night that upon agreement between himself and the attorneys representing the National banks in Richmond the question as to whether the bank will pay city taxes on their capital or not has been transferred from Covington to Richmond, coming before Judge Cochran in Federal court at its next session, which begins November 13. The State Bank and Trust Co., already having paid taxes on its capital stock, has asked the council to refund the amount. The council voted to wait until a decision is handed down from Judge Cochran. If the city should not be able to collect taxes on the capital stocks of the Richmond banks, it would mean a loss of about $12,000 yearly.

Al of the members of the council answered present with the exception of J. W. Hamilton. Adam Kelly reported to the council that his son, Lillard, who was driving a taxi several weeks, had taken Patrolmen Hardin and Turner over the Big Hill pike where they stopped a car, removing three jars of whiskey. Mr. Kelly claims that the officers took the liquor to one of their homes and turned the man from whom they had obtained the whiskey loose. The matter was turned over to the police committee, composed of Councilmen Hamilton, Benton and McKinney.

Both of the patrolmen vigorously deny the charge made by Mr. Kelly. They say that they saw a car in the ditch on the side of the road and some men working on it. The men left, and the officers turning their car around saw in the glare of the headlights some jars of 'shine in a field on the other side of the fence. They brought this to town, they say, and locked it up in the locker at Police Headquarters, as is customary they say. Chief of Police Claude Devore corroborates the officers that the whiskey was put there, and says it was poured out later, as he does with all liquor captured. The officers say they had no cause to arrest the men as they were not near the whiskey. The officers were out that pike at the time looking for a colored bootlegger who was suspected of bringing in whiskey. They assert that Mr. Kelly's charge was made for spite because he was cited for failure to take on his city license, and further because of the arrest of one of his sons for disorderly conduct.

Mayor O'Neil and the Police Committee state that they will vigorously investigate the charge made by Kelly.

Reports from city officers show that Chief of Police Claude Devore has collected fines to the sum of $110 while City Collector Dykes had received collections amounting to $81,144.80 during the past month. Police Judge Smith failed to make a report.

According to the statutes of Kentucky a fourth class city may have a pardoning board for is police court, Mayor O'Neil appointing Councilmen Hamilton and Crutcher to act with him on this board which was thought to have become necessary for Richmond.

Much discussion was had as to the sewer connection of the property of Nannie Terrill on Hill street. It seems that there has been a great deal of kick from that neighborhood through it emptying into the street. City Health Officer Bosley was given permission to put a stop to such conditions. The sewer committee reported that conditions on Seventh, North, and West Main should be looked after by the Street Commissioner. The citizens residing on West Main near Seventh street have been kicking quite a bit because of the condition of a sewer running behind their property.

A motion providing for the re-grading of B street, between Main and Irvine, giving Street

Commissioner Allman authority to act, was passed. Lyndon avenue was ordered ditched and graded so as to make it passable. First street, extending south by Bob Walker's stable was ordered opened, having been fenced off for about 12 years.

Jake Hackett's claim for damages to his automobile which was hit by the fire truck some time ago was turned over to the fire committee, composed of Councilmen Benton, Martin, and Crutcher.

A motion to adjourn was carried after the bills were allowed.

BARKLEY TO SPEAK HERE MONDAY

Congressman Alben W. Barkley, will speak in Richmond on Monday in the interest of the re-election of Congressman Ralph Gilbert.

Judge Barkley is a great favorite here and what he will have to say will be heard with interest. His addresses are always heard by big crowds. He is a great friend of the farmer and tobacco growers and has been speaking for the pool in western Kentucky recently. Democrats are confident of the re-election of Gilbert if the vote comes out. Reports are that the republicans are conducting a gum-shoe campaign and hope to win through apathy of the democratic vote, just as they elected King Swope after the death of Harvey Helm.

Barkley speaks at the courthouse at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon.

LITTLE THEATRE CLUB ELECTS ITS OFFICERS

The Little Theater Club at its recent meeting elected officers for the ensuing year as follows: Sarah Arbuckle, president; Carolyn Rice, secretary; I. B. Shearer, treasurer; Colman Covington and Shelby Carr, business managers; John Jayne, stage manager and electrician.

Under the direction of the new officers the tryouts were held on Tuesday and Thursday nights. Many attractive skits and individual numbers were given. Club members are delighted with the new material which they were able to select and are planning some excellent productions to be given this winter.

The Little Theater Club issued invitations to the following students for membership: Russell Davis, Virginia Gordon, Dorothy Terrill, Robie James, Elizabeth Rye, Maude Knox, Georgia Smith, Glenn Faulconer, Allie Tribble, Alberta Cros, Virginia Rominger, Ethel Depew, Lillie Strong, Judson Harmon, Louise Cammack, Hobert Templeton, Lula Anderson, Josephine Smith, Glenna Wood, Christine Yager, Marian Webber, Virginia Rountt, Edgar Higgins, Helen G. ## OFFICERS FOIL BIG TRAIN ROBBERY

(By Associated Press)

Wittenburg, Mo., Nov. 3.—Jack Kennedy, Missouri train robber and Harvey Logan, a former railroad man were shot and killed early today by officers after bandits had robbed a mail car on the southbound Frisco passenger train. Stolen mail of about three hundred registered letters was recovered. Six post-office inspectors, three Frisco special agents and two deputy sheriffs were waiting near the scene of the robbery, which had been anticipated though previously watching Kennedy's movements. Kennedy had been representing himself as a quail hunter in this section for several weeks. Postoffice Inspector Ward, of St. Louis, ran into him several weeks ago near Memphis, and learned he had been making short trips over the road. He became suspicious and laid a trap. Kennedy and his pal were allowed to uncock the engine and two cars from the train, line up postal clerks, and rob the mail. They were returning to the point where their automobile was stationed, when officers ordered them to halt. The bandits reached for their guns and a fusillade of shots laid them low. Both were found dead with revolvers clutched in their hands.

W. O. MAYS WINS BINGHAM TAX CASE

Frankfort, Nov. 3.—The Court of Appeals today affirmed the Jefferson circuit court in the Bingham inheritance tax case. By it the state will receive $1,901,000. The state already has received approximately $1,600,000. Mrs. Bingham, wife of Judge Robert W. Bingham, publisher of Louisville newspapers, died in 1918.

Interesting Institute

A most interesting and helpful institute was held for the workers of the town and County, Oct. 31st. Mr. Van Buskirk and Miss Howard gave some most valuable information to the small though thoughtful and appreciative audience.

The address of the evening "The Youth and the Church" by Mr. Van Buskirk was an inspiration and his repeating of Margaret Slattery's story of the young man who looked on a famous picture of the Christ and was moved to say "I will not fail Thee," was a fitting climax to his remarks and brought out in a wonderful way the spirit of loyalty in the youth that the church must give opportunity for expression.

HERALD TELLS OF SCHOOL ELECTION

Lexington Paper Says There's Much Interest Here In the School Board Policies

The Lexington Herald sent a special reporter over this week and in Friday's paper appears a lengthy article on the City School Board election which is to be held next Tuesday along with the congressional and road tax elections. Outside of several inaccuracies in stating the position of the editor of the Daily Register in the matter, the article as written in the Herald appears to be a fair presentation of the question before the people of Richmond on the School Board election. What the editor of the Daily Register did tell the Herald reporter will be found following the paragraph referring to him in the article. The Herald's story was as follows:

Richmond, Ky., Nov. 2.—Interest in the Richmond election to be held November 7 centers in the fight that is being waged by the incumbent city school board members to obtain election of the four members whose terms expire. One of the bitterest contests in the history of Madison county is being conducted in the race for the school trustee offices. The new candidates are running upon a platform which flays the incumbent board for breaking its promise to the taxpayers, while the old members of the board are conducting their fight on a platform of economy and completion of work already started.

The members whose terms expire this year are John Noland, chairman of the board; J. C. Chennault, D. B. McKinney and Mrs. Ada Dunn, and the new ticket placed in the field consists of J. Hale Dean, Miss Lucia Burnam, W. S. Broadbush and Henry Cosby.

The entire fight is being waged around and hinges upon a pledge which was given by the present school board several months ago, in which it promised that the school tax which was then 75 cents on $100 would not be raised above 90 cents. The tax has since been increased to $1.35 and those opposed to the board claim incompetence forced the raising of the tax.

The school board asserts that the promise was made without proper inquiry into the cost of constructing the new school building and it was forced either to abandon work on the school or increase the tax.

In March, 1921, the school building of Richmond burned to the ground all the furniture and equipment being destroyed. Insurance totalling only $28,000 was carried on the property. Criticism of the board was started immediately, it being claimed that it should have had double this amount of insurance.

Churches and civic organizations of the city opened their doors to the school children and since that time schools have been scattered throughout the town.

The site upon which the old building was located covered less than an acre of ground, most of which was taken up by the structure proper. This left very little room for a recreation ground, and the school board, after taking the matter under consideration, decided to erect the new school upon a plot of ground on the other side of the city, this site covering about seven and one half acres, having been donated to the board by the trustees of the old Madison Institute for Girls, the provision being made that a first class high school be maintained there. School Superintendent Payne recommended that all of the schools of the city both graded and high schools, be consolidated in the new building.

This idea was adopted by the school board and met with serious opposition principally among those who had erected homes near the site of the burned building, and when a bond issue of $80,000 for constructing the new school building was voted upon, the opponents of the new site took a leading part in the opposition to the lands. Another faction joined hands with these school board opponents, this group claiming that while the board contemplated building the school with the $80,000 bond issue and $28,000 insurance from the old school, the cost would not run far above that amount and a maximum school tax of $1.50 would be necessary for the next five years.

The fight against the bond issue became so intense that the board issued a promise to the people in which it pledged itself not to raise the tax more than 20 per cent above what it was at that time, this 20 per cent being necessary for carrying the bond issue and other running expenses.

The pledge was taken as a promise that no further tax for constructing the school would be levied, and it is claimed that only with this assurance were the peoples induced to vote the bond issue.

Bids were asked from 16 construction firms in Kentucky, Indiana, Ohio and Tennessee. The first bids received went over the $100,000 mark, and, according to Mr. Noland, chairman of the board, these bids were all rejected and the architect was asked to revise the plans for the building and leave off everything that could practically be eliminated. The plans were thoroughly gone over and cloak rooms for each room were abolished, much cut stone work was taken off of the front of the building and every effort was made to have the building constructed at a minimum cost, Mr. Noland stated.

Bids were asked on the revised specifications and the lowest bidder, J. C. Miller, of Campbellsburg, offered to construct the school according to the plans for $99,400. The school board is understood to have met with a citizens' committee consisting of Harvey Chennault, now deceased, K. E. Turley, James W. Hamilton, C. C. Wallace and J. Hale Dean, the latter a candidate for the board on the new ticket.

Miller Bid Is Accepted

Upon the recommendation of this committee Mr. Noland stated that the bid of Mr. Miller was accepted. These specifications did not, however, include furnishing and other equipment.

Again meeting with the citizens' committee the board presented its problem. It had promised the people to build the school building without exceeding the $108,000 or increasing the taxes. On the other hand it was confronted with the problem of letting the school stand idle for a year until the money for furnishing it could be raised thru the regular tax levy.

In a publication to the people the board made the following statement: "We can carry out literally our promise to the taxpayers and break faith with the children and fail to redeem the literal interpretations of the promise."

After consideration it was decided to increase the levy to $1.35 and, as expressed by them, "run the gauntlet of criticism."

Following the announcement that the tax levy would be increased, the new ticket was formed and placed in the field. These candidates contended that the board had deliberately broken its promise to the taxpayers by making the pledge for the purpose of passing the bond issue and when this had been passed forgetting its pledge.

The promise made public by the board over the signature of each member is as follows:

"We, the members of the board of education pledge ourselves and promise that if the bond issue carries at the election on Friday, June 17, we will not raise the school tax over and above an amount sufficient to defray the running expenses and to create a sinking fund necessary to retire bonds as they fall due and to pay interest on same. Less than 20 per cent additional tax will be necessary for this purpose."

(Then follows the defense of the Board to the charge that it had fooled the people, which has been published in these columns before and which was stated substantially the same in the statement published yesterday and alleged to have been written by several well known citizens.)

Waller Bennett, president of the Madison National Bank, who has taken part in the opposition to the school board, stated today that the board's greatest mistake was made in promising that the building would not cost more than $98,000 without first consulting an architect and getting

Exchange Club To Put One Up At Railroad—F. McDougle Guest Of Honor

The regular meeting of the Exchange Club brought out many members who greeted Judge W. R. Shackelford, as their new member.

The "Big Judge" spoke to the club on public spirit, and said he was glad to contribute in any manner he could to any organization that stood for the betterment of public spirit, and that Richmond needed its public spirit stirred up as badly as she needed anything else.

Dr. E. C. McDougle was the guest of honor, and spoke on the big step they had taken in bringing this about by the fine Halloween carnival they put on, thus bringing the county and town people together in a spirit of fun-making and holiday atmosphere, and that he honestly hoped the club would not stop with this, but continue in its great and good work.

A vote of thanks was extended the Kentucky Utilities Company for its generous donation of the many lights that made the Halloween carnival a great success. Had it not been for this donation the affair could not have been possible. Also, the club extended its appreciation to the popular Manager, George Fawkes, for his untiring efforts in co-operating with the different committees the hard work he did in putting up these many lights just where they were needed.

It was unanimously voted to make the Halloween Carnival an annual affair with many improvements next year.

Hart Perry outlined a movement that has been put on foot by Dr. Smoot. This is to place a large weatherproof sign on the grounds of the Golf Club, the sign to face the railroad so that it can be easily read by everyone on every train coming into Richmond. This sign is to have painted on it "1922, Richmond Golf Club. We also have a Normal School and Teachers' College, an Exchange Club, a Rotary Club, a Chamber of Commerce and 700 Good Citizens. Glad You Came, Stay Long, Harry Back." This movement met with the unanimous approval of the entire club and many expressed appreciation of the idea. After much favorable discussion Pres. Telford appointed Dr. Smoot, Hart Perry and Jack Pushin as a committee to work this up.

Pres. Telford very beautifully and touchingly presented to the club from the Board of Control, a framed picture of their beloved first vice president, the late Harvey Chennault. This picture is to be hung on the walls of the private dining room where the club meets. Pres. Telford proposed a silent toast to Mr. Chennault's memory saying "May we all live better lives by the shining example he has set for us."

Does The Present School

Board Deserve Endorsement?

There was published yesterday a signed endorsement of the present Board of Education of Richmond for its actions in connection with the school bond issue and raising of the school tax to build and equip the new school. Of course, the members of the present board have many friends and many will endorse what they have done, even though the record shows that the Board flagrantly violated its pledge made to the people before the bond issue not to raise the school tax over 90c on the $100 of property. Some taxpayers of Richmond who found their city taxes enormously increased when they paid up on Oct. 31, probably won't agree with those friends of the present board that it deserves endorsement of its work. They will prefer to take the position that no public official who breaks a promise to the people should have an endorsement, no matter whether such a pledge was violated unwillingly or not.

To read the statement published in another column one would almost think that the members of the present board are martyrs to their duties as members of the City School Board. It is interesting to know that the author of this splendid tribute to the board and their work cannot be exactly identified even though the names of a number of prominent citizens are appended thereto. Suspicion has it that the compliment to the Board's work might have been written by a member of the board—mayhap even the versatile chairman himself. This much at least is known: Several of the prominent men whose names are signed say that they were solicited to sign the endorsement and it was presented to them by a member of the present board. So that the suspicion is given the stronger color that a member of the Board might be found in the attitude of writing an endorsement of and a tribute to himself and his colleagues. The Daily Register would be glad to state just who was the author of this statement—who wrote it—if it is in error regarding the suspicion as to the "fine Italian hand" which seems apparent through it all.

The Daily Register does not desire to do any man or woman an injustice at any time. It desires to be fair at all times. It has no personal fight against the four members of the present Board of Education who are asking the people to endorse their official actions. The Daily Register does believe, however, that every honest newspaper owes a public duty to expose official negligence, incompetency or deception whenever and wherever it knows the facts. To conceal or condone the violation of a solemn pledge made by an official to the people, especially where there is a consideration involved, is unthinkable on the part of an honest journal.

The facts are that the present Board of Education promised the taxpayers of Richmond that if they voted for the school bond issue, their taxes would not be raised over "an amount necessary to take care of the running expenses and a sinking fund" and that "less than 20 per cent additional would be necessary." The "twenty per cent additional" added to the then school tax of 75c, would make 90c. The board raised the tax to $1.35 and seeks endorsement of its work.

But at that, the board did not go to the full legal limit allowed for school taxes in cities of this class. The board might have raised the tax to $1.50. If the people at the polls next Tuesday in voting for four members of the School Board to control Richmond's educational affairs for the next four years, approve the action of the board in raising the tax to $1.35, the board members may feel that their course has been endorsed. They may be proud of the vote of confidence given them, and rightly so. And the Daily Register would suggest, following such a splendid endorsement, that the Board raise the school tax to the full legal limit of $1.50 and secure funds to equip and amplify immediately the splendid building that is under construction. Members of the board stated during the public discussion of the school building proposition that estimates and requirements had been "cut to the bone" to keep down expenses. However, with an endorsement of the tax rate that was forced on the people, there will be no further need for such economy and everything needed in the future may be secured at once by taking advantage of the law which permits the board to make the rate $1.50 if it desires. If the voters of Richmond do not object to the raise in their school tax to $1.35 under the conditions as set forth, they assuredly won't object much to paying $1.50 school tax.

And if re-elected the present board should make the raise and but everything that might be needed to give Richmond the finest school in the land. She deserves it and everyone wants her to have it. Some feel, perhaps, that the upbuilding of the city's school might be a trifle more by degrees, or that payments for what is needed might be deferred along and not make present taxes so hard on the people. But it's up to the people to say what they want and they can usually get what they want at the polls on election day if they want it bad enough.

The statement issued yesterday says the old board will regard the election as a silent referendum on its record. In other words, the election will say whether the taxpayers and voters of Richmond endorse what the old board has done; whether they endorse the business management of the board which leaves a property worth $100,000 exposed to a disastrous fire with only $28,000 insurance; whether they endorse the violation of a promise not to raise the tax over 90c and whether they think that a group who handles public affairs by such methods should be continued in control. The question suggests itself: Would a business man want men to manage his private affairs who have done these things? Would he turn over his business to them to manage? The business of the people of Richmond is a bigger thing than any private enterprise. The schools of Richmond are one of the most important items of the interests of the city and of the taxpayers.

The taxpayers and voters have a perfect right to pass upon the people that they desire to manage this great and growing interest of their fair city. It's a big job.

If the people think the present board has done its work with competence and with fairness to the people, and want their policies continued for four years more, they should vote for Noiland, Chenault, McKinney and Mrs. Dunn.

If the voters and taxpayers are not satisfied with the tax that was imposed upon them or the methods used by the present board, they should vote for Cosby, Dean, Broadus, and Miss Burnam. The issue is clean cut. The people have the say, as they should have; and as far as the Daily Register is concerned—and it only desires that the best interests of the people and the schools be considered at all times—it is willing to abide by what they say at the polls next Tuesday.

Resolutions adopted by Rotary Club of Richmond, Kentucky, upon death of "Bob" Burnam, Sr., Fire Insurance.

Whereas Almighty God has removed from us Rotarian R. R. Burnam, Sr. We pause to pay tribute to his memory and drop a tear of sympathy to mingle with those of his family and relatives.

To us in our regular meetings he was a fellow-Rotarian, a title only recently acquired but most worthily worn. No single title conveys an idea of the worth of this good man.

"Was he Rotarian—Yes and more;
Was he Citizen—Yes and more;
Was he Neighbor—Yes and there was none better;

Was he Friend—Yes and happy are we that have called him such;
Was he Christian—Yes and with that faith which shines brighter and brighter unto the perfect day."

He was husband, father and brother, loving-kind and true. It was a joy to know him while living and we here resolve to emulate his example in all the walks of life.

Therefore, be it resolved; that a copy of this resolution be spread upon our minutes, a copy be given to the local Press and a copy to the bereaved family.

If Back Hurts Begin on Salts

Flush your Kidneys occasionally if you eat too much meat.

No man or woman who eats lots of meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Too much meat may form uric acid, which clogs the kidney pores so that they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood; then you get sick. Rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders often come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity; also to help neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus often ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and can not injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink, which everyone can take now and then to help keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby often preventing serious kidney complications.

Third Generation is Using Syrup Pepsin

No other Laxative can replace Dr. Caldwell's in the confidence of those who use it

ANY FAMILY MAY TRY IT FREE

Thousands of parents are asking themselves, "Where can I find a trustworthy laxative that anyone in the family can use when constipated?" I urge you to try Syrup Pepsin. I will gladly provide a liberal free sample bottle, sufficient for an adequate test. Write me where to send it. Address Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 515 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois. Do it now!

THERE are thousands of healthy, robust young men and women who have never in all their lives taken any other laxative for constipation than Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Their parents were given it by their parents; the grandparents are using it today. It is the one laxative ideally suited to all the family, safe for the little ones, effective in grownups, so compounded that elderly people, who are constantly forced to take a laxative because the intestinal muscles are weakening, find increased dosage unnecessary. This wonderful constipation remedy has been used continuously for 30 years, and over 10 million bottles are now sold annually, the largest selling family laxative in the world! The cost averages but a cent a dose. Every druggist sells it, and under a guarantee to do as claimed or your money will be refunded. Millions of carefully conducted homes are never without a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

Mr. J. B. Belk of Shaw, Miss, relies on it entirely to keep his children in health, and Mrs. Catherine Connolly of Jersey City, N. J., declares that not only herself but all her neighbors and friends use it and tell others about it. There is scarcely a day that someone in a family does not need it for constipation, flatulence, auto-intoxication, biliousness, intestinal poisoning, headaches, colic and cramps, and to break up fevers and colds.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a scientifically-balanced compound of Egyptian senna with pepsin and pleasant-tasting aromatics. The formula is on the package. As the popularity of this natural vegetable laxative increases, the public discards the harsher physics like calomel, coal-tar in candy form, salt waters and powders. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin empties the bowels more cleanly and without any danger.

"Why Should I Cry Over You"

Ed Randall

To The Taxpayers and Renters of Madison County:

In Tuesday's paper there was an article from The Citizen's Committee stating that they have been trying to get the issue of the 20c tax honestly and squarely before the people. Now let's see if I can get this matter before the people without so much beating around the bush. This committee could put the issue clearly before the people if there were not some things they want to keep hid.

I have always understood the amount that is to be added to our tax is 20c to the hundred dollars, if carried but their argument is that this would increase the valuation of property. An increase in the value of property means an increase in the assessment of property. An increase in assessment of property means an increase in our tax. We know what the 20c on the $100.00 would cost us right now but it has not been so long since we were notified by the State Tax Commission that there were so many million dollars short and were going to re-assess property to make up this shortage.

Now I will ask you tax boosters how much of this will be added on to your property if this 20c tax is added to all of the increased valuation of property in six years. The Tax Commission is liable to meet six times in the next six years. I will ask you to clearly state before the voters if you want to be honest in it just how much in your opinion this 20c will climb to in six years.

Get This: There is one house on my street listed at $1250.00. 20c to the hundred dollars would mean $2.50 per year, six years would amount to $15.00. The tax commission comes along and raised this property to 4,000.00, then the 20c tax means $8.00 per year in six years means $48.00. You can get this before the people without any error. This property cost this man $1750.00. This is no fairy joke.

To the Renters:

The Citizens Committee in this argument on the rent question agree that the tenant will have this to pay. They agree the landlord is justified in raising the rent to the requirement of the full amount of the tax. This is what I want to get clear before the renters.

Tuesday's article I knew of only ten houses owned by men who said if this tax was voted on were going to raise their rent.

Today I know of sixty-five houses that have owners who say the same thing. Mr. Voter don't get fooled in what you are doing as far as benefits are concerned. This tax does not deal directly or indirectly with the City of Richmond as some of them have told you. If this tax was passed you could get concrete sidewalks built 1-4 miles for $8.15. This is misleading to you and must be exposed.

STRODE EMMONS

Chinese Junk in Which Waard Crossed Pacific.

BRAVES CALES IN JUNK OF 23 TONS

Hollander Crosses Pacific Ocean From Shanghai With Chinese Wife at Tiller.

CRAFT CAUSES BIG SENSATION

Tale of 91 Days at Sea Matches Highest Flights of Imagination—Rides Out Typhoons and Succession of Heavy Gales.

How would you like to make the trip this daring adventurer took?

Victoria, B. C.—It is well that Christopher Columbus established himself in the Hall of Fame some centuries ago, for if he had to do his discovering today, he would find a worthy rival in the man who is now crossing the Pacific in a 23-ton Chinese fishing junk, with his Chinese wife as helmsman, his nine-year-old son as cook and cabin boy, and a foremast crew of three Chinese, of whom two had never been beyond the confines of Hongkong harbor.

Several months ago, tired of life on the Chinese coast, Waard decided to return to America. So he gathered tools and timbers, fashioned himself a ship, signed on a hand or two, and embarked with his family for British Columbia. That was at Shanghai, June 21.

Junk Is Sensation.

Last week saw the finish at Victoria, B. C., of the remarkable crossing of more than 5,200 miles of the Pacific. Into the harbor stole a craft, the like of which had never before been seen in these waters. Spectators rubbed their eyes in bewilderment over the vessel, with its towering stern, its stump of a bow, its amazing coat of red, green and yellow, the two bulging brilliant fish eyes glaring on both sides, the three ill-cut sails billowing in the breeze—and over all the five-striped, multi-colored flag of the Chinese republic.

Timid souls gazed nervously at the mysterious stranger, fearful lest she be some ghostly visitor from the deep, bearing to retribution some ancient, sinning mariner.

The full tale of the 91 days at sea—from the sailing day, June 21, at Shanghai to the day of arrival at Victoria, September 19, as told by Waard and his wife—matches the highest flights of imagination.

"One night," said Captain Waard, pointing out a snake skin as wide around as a man's thigh and ten feet in length, "we were at anchor off the China coast. The man on watch dozed off. A small chow dog aboard barked and awakened me. On the China coast you sleep with your gun on your pillow and I had it handy as I sprang up, thinking pirates might have boarded the ship."

Snake for Breakfast.

"The first sight to meet my eyes was this great snake sliding down from the deck into the cabin. Well, he took the floor. I let him have it; the table suited me better. And then I blazed away. It took four shots to finish the beggar. I threw it on the deck."

"Half a minute later I followed. But it was too late. These fellows (pointing to his three Chinese) already had the snake sliced up and in the pot. I didn't get my next morning breakfasting on snake, cat and duck from the same pot. They dined like lords!"

Full of pride in his vessel, the skipper had a thousand instances to tell of her seaworthiness.

"She'll ride anything or we wouldn't be here. It was the roughest trip I ever made and I've made a plenty."

"Nervous? Not a bit. The Shanghai people were when we left. But I knew what was before us—no doctoring, no fresh provisions, no ice chest—hardship unshared. I knew all that, and so did mother."

Washed Once-a-Week Luxury.

"Water? Plenty of it for drinking. The tanks carry between 400 and 500 gallons. But the luxury of a wash was a weekly occurrence. Washing clothes was out of the question. We couldn't think of having a bath—not that I was greatly troubled by the sailors there. As for the rest, we had plenty. There was always a fish to be caught on the road, a bird to be shot or a porpoise to be harpooned. Food was the least of our worries."

Captain Waard smiled and admitted that after all he was glad it was over. His Chinese wife at the tiller concurred. Little Bob, nine years old, born in China, with the voice and language of a Westerner but the features of the Oriental, lent his part to the interview.

"I didn't like it very much, too much seasick," he admitted. Then, licking first a cone in one hand and then another in the other, he added: "Victoria more better than Shanghai. Ice cream more cheap here."

"If it wasn't for her we would never have made it," the skipper proudly chimed in again of his Chinese wife. "She can handle the ship better than I can, and the crew hops when she gives orders. No, she isn't the mate, she's the master."

Is Thoroughbred of Sea.

Big and brawny, Waard is a thoroughbred of the sea, bronzed and wrinkled by the suns and winds of many waters. Mild-mannered and affable, he seems to have something of the imperturbability of the ocean itself, gained through a lifetime of voyaging on its stormy bosom. A Hollander by birth, he came to Canada as a lad, and first went to sea with the sealing fleet from Victoria at the age of eleven. He got his daily ration of beatings for doing wrong or because the mate believed he would certainly do so before nightfall, if he had not done so at the time of beating. Years later he went to China and now he has returned.

The Amoy, as his junk is known, is the captain's own creation, built at Amoy at the cost of four months' labor and several thousand dollars. It is 60 feet long—has an 18-foot beam and a 5-foot draft. The only motive power is in its sails, six in all, so arranged that one man can manipulate them all. The vessel is built on the lines of the Chinese fishing junk, even to the eyes.

To the Chinaman the ship's eyes are more important than her lifeboats. They not only have to be there, but must be placed there on certain days—Joss days. Behind them is a bit of money and a scrap of paper with some scribbling on it, all very significant to the Chinese seaman. Without eyes how could the ship see in the dark, the Chinaman reasons.

The tale of the trip is a stirring one. Scarcely had Shanghai been left behind when typhoons, seemingly in waiting, swept down upon it. The 1,200 miles to Hokodate, in the north of Japan, was one continual struggle. Six days later, with the weather more moderate, Hakodate was left behind. But the lull proved very temporary. The storm king rushed in from the east and south, driving the junk ever north, until, passing among the Aleutian Islands, it burst into the Behring sea. Repeatedly the rudder was carried away, repaired and swept away again. Half the distance was covered with jury rudders dragging the vessel back. Gales and gales succeeded each other—anyway calm with great breaking swells that tore and smashed the craft about while headway was impossible—and gales that made the frail ship labor in alarming fashion.

Closest Shave Near End.

Unalaska, in the Aleutians, was sought for refuge on August 28 and left again on September 1. On this last leg of the voyage they had better luck. A fair breeze sent the ship down the coast to Victoria. Only a few hours away from the port, however, the huge bulk of a Japanese steamer suddenly loomed in the fog threatening disaster.

"It was the closest shave I've had," said Captain Waard.

"I could have put my hand on her. But this old junk can spin about like a tub in her own length and that was what she did, when the Japanese was three feet away coming closer every second."

Now that he is safely on the Pacific coast, Waard intends to exhibit his strange ship in every port on the continent, from Victoria to Panama, New York to Boston, the St. Lawrence and the Great Lakes. This done, he will turn to Europe.

Almsouse Pals Loyal to End.

Watertown, N. Y.—John Serberin, aged fifty-six, and Patrick Cransley, pals for a dozen years at the local almsouse, have carried their companionship into death. Cransley slashed his throat. Shortly afterwards Serberin went to the river bank, threw away his crutch and plunged in.

---A Protest

By order of the Fiscal Court of Madison county an election will be held on November 7, 1922 on the question of voting a 20 cent tax for six years "FOR THE IMPROVEMENT OR CONSTRUCTION OF THE PUBLIC ROADS AND BRIDGES IN THE COUNTY."

The present road tax is levied "FOR THE IMPROVEMENT OR CONSTRUCTION OF THE PUBLIC ROADS AND BRIDGES IN THE COUNTY," and yields a revenue of about $70,000 annually, 80 per cent of which has been and is being spent on 86 1-2 miles of pike, designated as inter-county roads, leaving but 20 per cent for the upkeep of the other 207 1-2 miles of pike and 150 miles of dirt road.

The 86 1-2 miles of inter-county road are in excellent condition when compared with the other 207 1-2 miles of pike, but this 20 cent tax money MUST be spent in laying yet another improved surface on this 86 1-2 miles, according to the pledge given by the Fiscal Court to the Citizens' Committee.

This Citizens' Committee has no legal standing nor can the Fiscal Court delegate its duties to this committee except by deferring to the advice and wishes of the committee. In other words, the Citizens' Committee is purely an advisory board whose desires may be set aside if the Fiscal Court wants to set them aside. The old order, the old or present road system continues as before.

Every man and woman in Madison county will pay his or her part of this tax. Laboring men will pay more rent for houses in town or country and more for groceries and other supplies. Nobody will escape his part of the burden.

According to the legal presentation of the vote to be taken the old road fund of about $70,000 could and may be used in whole or in part to complete inter-county roads if the 20 cent tax is not enough.

Instead of being asked to raise more money to fix what you have you are requested to raise cash to further improve but one-fifth of the county roads, leaving the other four-fifths of road mileage to await the final completion of the automobile boulevards which may possibly come to pass at the end of the six years.

Every time the state of Kentucky gives Madison county a dollar it takes a dollar out of Madison county. The state, now heavily in debt, will be forced to collect further taxes before it can send money to Madison county and this county will have to raise its share of this state aid road fund.

In 1920 this county got about $23,000 and in 1921 about $30,000 and in 1922 about $43,000 state aid fund, all of it without voting an extra tax or bond issue. This county has received state aid and will continue to receive state aid, as much as we are entitled to, whether this tax is imposed or not. We will not lose anything by rejecting this tax. Madison county will get her share and no more.

However, if those opposed to this wildcat scheme of progress and prosperity do not vote against it on Tuesday, November 7, 1922, it will carry.

SCHOOL ELECTION

expert technical advice. He gave it as his opinion that the cost of the building would run still higher than estimated at the present time and would reach the vicinity of $130,000, although the school board asserts that it has every item contracted for at a cost of $108,000.

Shelton M. Saufley, editor of the Richmond Register, who also is taking a leading part in the fight to elect new members to the board, gave it as his opinion that the tax would be raised to $1.50 next year and would remain there for the next five years. He contended strongly that it was through mismanagement that the board allowed the cost of the school to run above the estimated cost and gave this as his principal reason for opposing the old members.

(The Herald reporter did not quote the editor of the Daily Register accurately here. What Saufley told him was that if the voters of Richmond did endorse by their votes the action of the present board in raising the tax to $1.35 notwithstanding their pledge, then the board SHOULD feel warranted in raising the tax to the full legal limit of $1.50, and using the money to add any additional equipment necessary to make the Richmond school the finest in the state. He said nothing about keeping the tax at $1.50 for five years though. And the only thing he said about "mismanagement" was that it looked like mighty poor management for a body of men entrusted with looking after the people's business to have a $100,000 property and have it protected with only about $28,000 insurance; or to go into the matter of erecting a $100,000 or so building and not be able to estimate whether it was going to take a 90c or a $1.35 tax rate to raise the money necessary, and he stated that the principal reason he was opposed to endorsement of the old board was because of its violation of its pledge to the taxpayers of the city after he and many others had supported the school bond issue upon the board's assurance that the tax would not be raised to exceed 90c. Witnesses who heard the conversation between the two will corroborate this statement that the above is the gist of what was said.) The Herald article proceeds:

Chairman Noland stated, however, that all of the furniture for the new building had been contracted for and would be paid for out of this year's levy. He also stated that the board expected to make a substantial reduction in the tax for next year, saying that any board would be able to do this and that no credit would be deserved as all of the expense of construction would be over.

John Howard Payne has been superintendent of schools throughout this period of controversy and it was principally due to his efforts that the schools were consolidated and the large new building erected. He has also been instrumental in combining the high school department of the State Normal School at Richmond with that of the city schools, increasing the attendance by several hundred.

The new building, a two story structure of red brick, with white stone trimmings, is built on a bluff overlooking the state normal school and the surrounding residential district. Plans are under way by the city to open a new sub-division in the rear of the property upon which the school has been built and, believing that the city was growing in that direction, the board decided upon this location. A mixture of old Roman and Norman architecture was used in designing the building, many of the finer architectural features being left out when the plans were revised.

E. A. and C. C. Webber, Cincinnati architects, who designed the building, are said to have made the statement: that they got more work for the money expended in constructing this building than on any project at which they have designed plans. One of the partners is claimed to have stated that he expected to get the front class rooms and basement built for the money, but that he was surprised that the large auditorium was also included in the bid by the contractors.

The auditorium, when completed, will be the largest in the city having been planned to seat 807 persons. In the event that a lecture is held in the building at which more seats are desired, the stage has been built large enough to accommodate over 100 chairs. The auditorium is built in a semi-circle with a large balcony.

On the second floor the high school classes will be located. 11 large class rooms having been built there. In addition there is a library and a study hall which will seat 100 persons.

On the lower floor the graded classes will be held. The recitation rooms have been constructed here with a teachers' rest room and an office.

In the basement will be located the manual training rooms, domestic science room and heating plant.

Surrounding the building is a lot of about six acres and as funds can be accumulated this will be turned into a playground. At the rear of the building there is space for a regulation football field and baseball diamond and it is planned to erect a grandstand here.

New South Wales Synod May License Church Deaconesses in Anglican Church.

Sydney, N. S. W.—The prospect of woman preachers occupying pulpits in many New South Wales churches has arisen as the result of a proposal, which is to come before the next Anglican provincial synod, that women be permitted to conduct services under certain conditions.

The proposed ordinance suggests that the archbishop or bishop of a diocese may issue a license to a deaconess to perform any of the following duties: To prepare candidates for baptism and confirmation; in church, in the absence of the pastor, to read morning and evening prayer and the litany, except such portions as are assigned to the priest only, and to instruct and to exhort the congregation and to conduct services for women and children.

Project Fostered by Government and Private Associations Extends Agriculture.

Rome.—Pursuing a policy of land reclamation, the government, working with private associations, has brought under cultivation 500,000 acres of land which otherwise would be virtually worthless.

In the Ferrara and Modena districts a drainage basin covering 200,000 acres has been completed and 150,000 miles of ditches have been built. This work already has cost 30,000,000 lire, and further drainage and irrigation projects will cost as much again.

In the Polesine-San Giorgio district 125,000 acres of swampy, malarious land has been converted into some of the most fertile grain fields of Italy.
